Reference: Occupational Health and Safety Act

Approved by Board of Directors: October 25, 2016

At Orde Day Care, the health and safety of our employees is paramount. Priority is given to protecting our employees, placement students, clients and our visitors from harassment, discrimination and harassment. Such conduct interferes with everyone's ability to perform their job and is not in keeping with the Centre's philosophy of trust and mutual respect

By working together, and giving the utmost attention to the safety and well-being of each other, we will meet our shared objective of a healthier and safer working environment for all.

Orde Day Care will not tolerate incidents of workplace harassment, violence and discrimination involving Orde Day Care staff, volunteers, placement students, members of the Orde Day Care Board of Directors, clients and community members, and will take action to prevent the occurrences. Employees who are found to have engaged in workplace harassment, violence or discrimination, will be subjected to a wide range of disciplinary sanction, up to and including with cause termination of employment. Legal authorities may also be alerted if appropriate.

Orde Day Care employees, placement students and clients are entitled to be treated with dignity and respect and have a work environment free from harassment and discrimination as prescribed by The Human Rights Code in Ontario and the Occupational Health and Safety Act as amended. This policy applies to all employees, placement students and agents/representatives of Orde Daycare while in the workplace, during work-related field trips or travel, or during any work-related and/or social functions.

Employees are expected to assist Orde Day Care in its attempts to prevent and eliminate harassment in the workplace. Orde Day Care will treat any form of harassment that occurs in the workplace seriously irrespective of the alleged perpetrator's position.

Nothing in this policy limits an individual's right to file a complaint with the Human Rights Commission or the Ministry of Labor should they feel the situation warrants such action.

The Occupational Health and Safety Act defines workplace harassment as "engaging in a course of vexatious comment or conduct against a worker in a workplace that is known or ought reasonably to be known to be unwelcome or workplace sexual harassment."

The comments or conduct typically happen more than once. They could occur over a relatively short period of time (for example, during the course of one day) or over a longer period of time (weeks, months or years). However, there may be a situation where the conduct happens only once, such as an unwelcome sexual solicitation from a manager or employer.

Workplace harassment can include unwelcome and/or repeated words or actions that are known or should be known to be offensive, embarrassing, humiliating or demeaning to a worker or group of workers. It can also include behaviour that intimidates, isolates or even discriminates against a worker or group of workers in the workplace that are unwelcome.

This definition of workplace harassment is broad enough to include harassment prohibited under Ontario's Human Rights Code, as well as what is often called "psychological harassment" or "personal harassment." The Ontario Human Rights Commission has a role in facilitating compliance with the Ontario Human Rights Code.

Workplace harassment does not include a reasonable action taken by an employer or supervisor relating to the management and direction of workers or the workplace [subsection 1(4)].

Workplace Harassment includes but is not limited to:

- a) any verbal or physical conduct, that may reasonably be perceived as denigrating or showing hostility or aversion toward an individual on the basis of a prohibitive ground or other status protected by law, or because of the protected status of the individual's relatives, friends, or associates.

This type of harassment includes, but is not limited to:

- a) Epithets, slurs, negative stereotyping, demeaning comments, including comments pertaining to a person's dress, accent or other cultural differences, or intimidating acts that are based on an individual's protected status; and/or
- b) Written or graphic material (whether by printed or electronic media) circulated within or posted within the workplace or on social media that shows hostility toward or is demeaning to an individual or group because of his or her protected status.

Workplace- Sexual Harassment

The OHSAA defines workplace sexual harassment as:

- engaging in a course of vexatious comment or conduct against a worker in a workplace because of sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression, where the course of comment or conduct is known or ought reasonably to be known to be unwelcome, or
- making a sexual solicitation or advance where the person making it is in a position to confer, grant or deny a benefit or advancement to the worker and the person knows or ought reasonably to know that the solicitation or advance is unwelcome [subsection 1(1)].

This definition of workplace sexual harassment is similar to the prohibitions on sexual harassment and sexual solicitation found in Ontario's Human Rights Code.

- a) Workplace can constitute any place where employees are in attendance, ie field trip, after hour functions or events.

- b) Inappropriate comments posted on social media sites by employees will also be considered, if postings are inappropriate and are derogatory in nature. Private postings can be copied and sent to others.
- c) making a sexual solicitation or advance where the person making the solicitation or advance is in a position to confer, grant or deny benefit or advancement to the worker and person knows or ought reasonable to know that the solicitation or advance is unwelcome.
